

The State of Agile Analysis

Presented by Angela Wick
Founder, Principal Trainer/Consultant,
BA-Squared, LLC and BA-Cube.com

When many teams learn agile ways of working, they focus on the new processes, teamwork, and metrics like velocity.

Teams also struggle with Product Owner availability, carrying over stories, and getting quick and regular feedback; often finding out too late what they built is not what the user really needed. Teams are stuck with a backlog of enhancement and fix requests; innovation and the strategic agenda seems like a leadership fantasy, rather than reality.

Let's put the customer back into the product and our team's work! We will discuss analysis techniques and practices that teams are missing out on to get great products that customers will love!

Agile analysis is connected to great results!

Learning Objectives:

- Understand what good agile analysis is
- Discover and understand the anti-patterns of agile analysis and team practices
- Discover what great product and analysis looks like at the team and organization levels
- Connect analysis to agile team results and agile values

Key point: Analysis is important to agile teams.
